

Rules for balancing an equation

1. Leave the lone elements to the last
2. Typically leave oxygen and hydrogen to the last
3. Start balancing with the most complicated molecule
4. If it doesn't balance, start over with another element
5. Remove all fractions